

RYAN WOULD BE COMMITTEE-MAN

Friends Will Force A Battle For Him In The Democratic State Convention Which Assembles Tomorrow.

OPPOSITION TAKEN FOR GRANTED

Big Session Opens At Two O'clock In The Afternoon--
Choice Of Delegates-At-Large Will Be Difficult Proposition.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 12.—That the strongest battle of the democratic state convention which convenes tomorrow will have in the selection of a national committeeman, which is in the background, was clearly demonstrated today when it became apparent that the fighting in the convention was to be forced by the friends of Timothy E. Ryan, who desires to go from Wisconsin to Denver shall respect him for national committee man when it meets in that city. That a resolution was to be placed before the convention endorsing Mr. Ryan as national committee man was the announcement made around the Plankinton house this morning by J. J. McNally of this city, who is doing what he can generally for Ryan and with Matt Hogan is trying to look after the Milwaukee situation for the Wisconsin man.

The convention will open at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. John F. Doherty, La Crosse, will make the keynote speech as temporary chairman. No one has been definitely selected by the leaders as permanent chairman, but the names of Assemblyman Evan Evans, Baraboo; Burr W. Jones, Madison; and C. E. Dwyer, Superior, are being mentioned, with the chances in favor of Mr. Evans.

The contest for delegates-at-large from Milwaukee's two congressional districts has become so complicated that it is possible that former Gov. George W. Peck may be chosen as a compromise candidate.

Monroe, Wis., Feb. 12.—The mayor and members of the city council of the city of Monroe, will not receive annual salaries, an ordinance providing for salaries having failed of passage at the meeting of the council last evening because it lacked the necessary three-fourths vote under the charter. The ordinance fixes the salaries of all city employees and gives the marshal and night officers an increase of $5 a month. The marshal will draw $65 a month and the night officers $55.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

A distinguished deputization conveyed to him the congratulations of the Society of Authors. In a pretty little home in the Surrey hills Mr. Meredith is spending his old age in almost as good health and spirit as he knew in his prime. Enthusiasm for outdoor sports has apparently kept the great novelist, whose literary career began back in the early '50s, free from the ailments that beset the author whose life is wholly sedentary.

SOUTHERNERS TALK ON IMMIGRATION

Delegates from Fourteen States Meet—Will Consider Plans to Attract Good Citizens.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Tampa, Fla., Feb. 12.—Several hundred delegates representing fourteen southern states faced Governor N. B. Broward today when he called to order the southern immigration conference. Many men of prominence, including foreign ambassadors, governors of states, mayors of cities and representatives of numerous commercial organizations, were included in the attendance.

The conference on immigration was handsomely decorated with the national colors and presented a most attractive appearance.

Governor Broward, in calling the convention to order, explained the object of the gathering to be to discuss ways and means to attract a desirable class of immigrants to the south, to prevent the coming of the pauper and criminal classes from Europe which have flooded other sections of the country, and to correct the alleged discrimination against the south in immigration matters by the national government.

Many notable men have been secured to address the convention. Among them are the German, Italian and Spanish ambassadors, Henry Watkinson of Louisville, E. J. Watson, commander of recruits of South Carolina, and Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia, who recently made a tour of Europe to study the immigration question.

WILL REVISE THE RULES OF RACING

Regular Biennial Congress of the National Trotting Association Meets in New York.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Feb. 12.—The regular biennial congress of the National Trotting association met at the Murray Hill hotel today, with the wise men of the harness racing world gathered to discuss the laws of that sport. The meeting is looked upon in racing circles as one of more than ordinary interest. It is the twenty-fourth meeting in the history of the association, and all changes made in the present rules and all new legislation enacted will be in force for the next two years.

Most important of the proposed changes in the rules is the one regarding the giving of a milner where admission is charged. It is probable that the rule adopted by the American Trotting association last year will be followed. This will permit any club in membership with the N. T. A. to give a three days' matinee meeting and charge admission without the horses incurring records.

The matter of racing two and three year-olds will be taken up by the association. Many of the members believe that a rule is needed to permit two and three year-olds to race two in three-year races, instead of three in five, as the rules of the organization now read. Another matter that may be brought up at the meeting is the proposal to license all drivers of the N. T. A. This rule was in effect some years ago, but was later repealed. Those in favor of reviving the rule argue that the system of running tracks in harness every jockey and trainer has proved of much benefit.

SCOUT CRUISERS TO BE GIVEN A TRIAL

Three New Cruisers with Different Types of Engines to Be Given a Test Trial.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Much interest is manifested in the Navy department in the trial of the new scout cruiser Chester, which is to take place the latter part of this week off the New England coast. The Chester, with her sister ships, the Salem and Birmingham, are of a type entirely new to the American navy. The Chester is the first to have its trial. The Birmingham will be tried next month, but the Salem has been delayed and probably will not have its trial run until summer.

The interest in the scout cruisers lies in the fact that while all three have the same lines, the same tonnage and the same estimated speed, each has motive power radically different from the other. In these types of ships the naval officers will have an excellent chance to figure out for themselves the relative merits of the turbine and the reciprocating engines. Also the reciprocating engines may be compared with two distinct types of turbine engines and in the final analysis will be in a position to know whether the old-style reciprocating engine is the equal of either the Parsons or the Curtis turbine engine.

The Salem is equipped with reciprocating engines, and the Chester has the Parsons turbine. When all three vessels have been turned up a series of runs will be held to determine their relative merits. The results will probably have considerable influence in determining the engineering policy of the Navy department in the matter of battleship equipment hereafter.

Two United States senators and other notables are on the list of speakers for the Marquette club's annual banquet at the Auditorium Annex tonight. They are Senators Beveridge of Indiana and Miles of Washington, Congressman Butler Ames of Massachusetts, Chase S. Osborn of Michigan and William L. McElroy of Nebraska. The Hamilton club also has arranged a banquet, at which the guest of honor and chief speaker will be Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 12.—This was a big day for the republicans of Michigan in general and of Grand Rapids in particular. The presence of Secretary Taft, a meeting of the state committee to arrange for the coming state convention, and the annual gathering of the State League of Republican Clubs have combined to attract to the city the largest number of party leaders ever seen here, except on the occasions of the state nominating conventions.

Of the three events public interest centers chiefly in the Lincoln banquet tonight under the auspices of the State League of Republican Clubs, at which Secretary Taft is to be the guest of honor and principal speaker. The secretary of war reached the city today and was given a rousing reception. For the greater part of the day he held an informal reception at the Morton House and was kept busy shaking hands with the republican leaders of Michigan.

Arrangements on a most elaborate scale have been completed for tonight's banquet. In addition to Secretary Taft the distinguished speakers will include M. J. Jusserand, the French ambassador, Congressman Foss of Illinois, Governor Curtis Guild of Massachusetts and Governor Warner of Michigan.

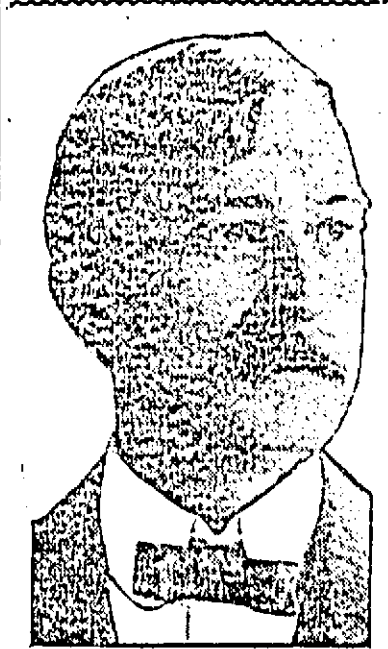

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—The home city of Abraham Lincoln observed his birthday anniversary by keeping a general holiday. Memorial exercises were held at the Lincoln tomb under the auspices of the local G. A. R. Tonight the Sangamon club holds its customary banquet, at which the speakers will be Governor Breen, Attorney General Stead, and Superintendent of Public Instruction Blair.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 12.—In Pittsburgh today Lincoln's birthday was observed by a practical suspension of all public business. Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, Senator Dooliver of Iowa, Senator Carter of Montana and others of national prominence are to be heard tonight at the Lincoln banquet of the Chamber of Commerce.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 12.—Lincoln's birthday was observed throughout Colorado as a public holiday. It was made an occasion for a big gathering of republicans from all over the state in this city. The state committee met to arrange for the spring convention to select delegates to Chicago and the county chairmen conferred on the details of the campaign. The republican editors also participated in the conference. The party leaders will attend a Lincoln banquet at the Albany hotel tonight.

Governor Harper will preside and Governor Buchtel will deliver the chief address.

Vandalia, Ind., Feb. 12.—Many young republicans gathered here today for the annual convention of the Indiana Lincoln League, the sessions of which will continue over tomorrow. Delegates are on hand from Indianapolis, Evansville, Terre Haute, Marion, South Bend, Elkhart, Fort Wayne, Kokomo, Muncie and numerous other cities of Indiana.

Sleigh Ride to Milton Junction.—A Delightful Time.—A large party—ladies and gentlemen numbering 110— took a sleigh ride from this city to Milton Junction yesterday afternoon. Single teams, double teams and four horse teams were brought in to requisition by the merry sleigh riders. Upon arriving at Milton they gathered at the Junction House where they were most hospitably and bountifully entertained by the Messrs. Morgan, who had been advised only the day previous that a party of seventy might be expected there. But notwithstanding the large number over that number all were amply provided for. The supper was an excellent one in all respects and seemed to be highly relished by those who partook of it. About nine thirty o'clock the dining room was cleared of tables and stove and made ready for the dancers, who were waiting with impatient feet, the signal of Webb and London's hand for the commencement of the dance. At the first sound of music the floor was filled, and from that hour onward until the small hours of morning began to grow larger there was little cessation of the music or of the merry dance.

It was a delightful party; the sleighing was all that could be asked; the supper and the entertainment by the Messrs. Morgan was excellent, the music was fine, and all present were in the best frame of mind for enjoying the pleasure of the occasion.

The party was largely indebted to Messrs. Henry McKim, George Harmon, and Gilbert Hogan for the inception and carrying out of this most enjoyable party.

NEWS FROM NEAR-BY NEIGHBORS

MONTICELLO
Monticello, Feb. 12.—A very large and appreciative audience attended the entertainment given by Mrs. J. H. Day of Jansville at the opera house last Friday evening. It would be a difficult matter to conceive of a more delightful entertainment than was given. The selections rendered by Mrs. Day were large, mostly new and of a nature that suited all, while they were given in an easy, pleasing manner. The renditions were interspersed by vocal and instrumental solos given by Miss Louise Whitcomb and Louise Manning of this place, and Miss Marie Ludden of Jansville, which proved to be decidedly pleasant features of the program. Several sleighs from Jansville, Brookfield and other neighboring towns were present to partake of the evening's enjoyment. The close attention given by the audience fittingly attested the appreciation of the program. Much credit is given Miss Josephine Fitzgerald, the prime mover of the occasion, for the success of this entertainment.

Of Course They Said So.

"How did you happen to come to me for your dentistry," said Dr. Richards to a patient recently.

"Why, you see I'm a stranger here," said the party, "and I inquired of several people as to what dentist to go to and they all said 'Dr. Richards' if I wanted 'Painless work'."

"Of course, I didn't want to be hurt and so I came up to you."

"Well, are you sorry you came?"

"Not a bit. You never hurt me in the least."

It's worth something to have such a reputation for Painless Dentistry. If you need dentistry and wish perfect satisfaction try Dr. Richards, "the deliverer of the goods."

OFFERS APPEAL BY THE DEPUTY U.S. MARSHALSHIP

ROCK FLINT, NEW FEDERAL AP-
POINTEE FOR WESTERN DIS-TRICT, MAKES A TENDER

ACCEPTANCE NOT CERTAIN

Janesville's City Marshal Has Not Yet Decided as to His Course of Action.

Rock Flint of Menomonee, newly appointed United States marshal for the western district of Wisconsin, has offered to City Marshal William H. Appleby of Janesville the appointment of Chief Deputy.

The Janesville officer has not yet made up his mind as to whether or not he will accept the appointment. His decision will be awaited with much interest, with many friends hoping that he will see his way clear to remain at his present post.

It is understood, however, that the proposed position has certain important advantages over the local office.

The position pays a salary of $1,800 a year, as compared with the salary of $1,200 for city marshal. In case of resignation, the fire and police commission will elect Chief Appleby's successor.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Seeks Release of Fryar: Mrs. Fred Fryar, wife of the blind man who was committed to the county house as the outcome of his abuse of her, visited the city hall late yesterday afternoon and pleaded with Judge Pifford and City Marshal Appleby to use their influence to effect his release. She now thinks that Fryar is not as bad as he has been painted and states that she and her husband will go to Marshfield to live if the authorities will give him his liberty.

Engine Broke Down: The west-bound passenger over the St. Paul road, leaving Milwaukee at 7:30 last evening, was stalled at Brookfield Junction by the breakdown of the locomotive for three hours last evening. It was necessary to send to Janesville to get the little engine which travels over the "dog-run" to Milton. It was after twelve o'clock when the Janesville passengers finally reached the city.

John Flynn Opens Theatre: John Flynn, who until recently conducted a restaurant on West Milwaukee street, has opened a vaudeville and moving-picture theatre at DelKalb, Ill. John Mosher, another former resident, is manager of the enterprise. Capacity business was the record of the first week.

Conductor Mooney Ill: Conductor Charles Mooney, who had a run on the St. Paul road between this city and Mineral Point for many years, is critically ill with pneumonia at his home in Brookfield. In recent times he has been running a train between Brookfield and New Glarus. Local friends will be glad to receive more reassuring tidings concerning his condition.

Hoboes in Court: Thomas Hoyer, Frank Wilson, and Jack Connor, three youthful hoboes who imposed upon Mrs. Conroy's good nature yesterday, returning for dinner after she had given them breakfast, appeared in municipal court this morning to answer charges of vagrancy. Sentences of ten days each in the battle were imposed, but they were suspended one hour in order to permit the trio to get out of town.

FRED R. JONES WAS SEVERELY INJURED

Thrown From Street Car and Suffered
Concussion of the brain at Los Angeles, Cal.

Fred R. Jones, former landlord of the Hotel London, this city, made a misstep in alighting from a street car at Los Angeles, Cal., recently and was thrown headlong to the bricks pavement. The impact caused concussion of the brain and at the hotel to which he was removed in an unconscious condition, physicians pronounced his case a very grave one. The doctors and Mrs. Jones worked over him for six days and nights before they were rewarded by symptoms which gave promise of his recovery. Word reached here yesterday that his condition is slowly improving. A tour of Mexico which Mr. and Mrs. Jones had planned will have to be abandoned and they will return to Janesville as soon as circumstances will permit.

SEES DANGER IN NEW FEDERALISM

DR. HENRY W. ROGERS SPEAKS AT KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY.

PERIL OF CONSTITUTION

Disposition Manifested to Give It Quality of Elasticity That Is Characteristic of the Common Law.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 12.—Dr. Henry Wade Rogers, dean of the Yale law school, delivered an address here Tuesday evening before the Kentucky university on "The Constitution and the New Federalism." Many of the members of the bar and judges of the Kentucky court of appeals listened to the address. He said in part:

"A tendency has developed within a few years to increase the power of the federal government at the expense of the state government, and in the federal government to enhance the power of the executive department at the expense of both the judicial and legislative departments.

Making Constitution Elastic.

"A disposition has also manifested itself to ignore the canons of constitutional construction which heretofore have guided the courts of this country and to establish a new theory which shall give to the constitution the character of elasticity which is the characteristic of the common law. There also appears an increasing antagonism to the courts and an attempt to create a feeling that they are anti-democratic and should be shorn of their power to nullify unconstitutional legislation.

"An antipathy is expressed to the limitations of power which the constitution has imposed and which the fathers revered and deemed necessary. These tendencies are found to some extent in both the great parties and in all sections of the country.

Revival of Federalism.

"We are threatened with a revival of federalism and with a federalism that is more extreme and radical than the federalism of the old federal party ever sanctioned. The argument proceeds on the assumption that the states have failed to perform their duty properly so that great evils have grown up which the states cannot or will not properly remedy and from which we should have been free if only the federal government had exercised the authority and not the states. "That the states have not done their full duty is conceded. But that the federal government would have done better in a more assumption and one I am not prepared to accept."

WHY CONTRACTOR DIDN'T WANT TO CUT DOWN BILLS.

Sensational Statement of Sanderson Quoted by Witness in Pennsylvania Capitol Trial.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 12.—The climax in the state capitol conspiracy trial was reached Tuesday afternoon, just before the commonwealth closed, when Stanford H. Lewis, assistant to Architect Joseph M. Huston, declared on the witness stand that Contractor John H. Sanderson, one of the defendants, complained that he did not want to cut down his bills because he "had to put up a big wad for other people."

Lewis also testified that the letter, which he produced Monday with the explanation that it was responsible for his being indicted for conspiracy, had been written and brought to him by former Auditor General Snyder, a defendant in the present case, for his signature. In it Lewis was made to say he had certified to a bill for $187,735.20 paid to the Pennsylvania Construction company for motelle illness cases which he had found correct.

Lewis' testimony followed the introduction of documentary evidence to show that thousands of dollars were paid to Sanderson for capitol furnishings month before their delivery, in spite of the fact that certificates of receipt in good condition were required by law before bills could be approved. The testimony of Lewis was direct and unqualified and was not attacked by the defense.

DORA McDONALD FOUND NOT GUILTY

CHICAGO MURDER TRIAL ENDS IN VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL.

IS APPLAUDED BY CROWD

Widow of the Noted King of Gamblers Breaks Down When Jury Sets Her Free.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Dora McDonald, widow of Michael McDonald, king of Chicago gamblers, was declared Tuesday afternoon not guilty of the murder of Webster Guerin, the artist who was killed in his studio in the Omaha building, February 21, 1907. The crowd that filled the courtroom testified its approval of the jury's finding with an outburst that the court quickly checked.

Crowd Hears the Verdict.

There was a big crowd in Judge Brontano's courtroom when it was learned that a verdict had been reached. Dora McDonald, heavily veiled and accompanied by her nurse, Miss Amanda Beck, was assisted into the room and sank into a seat—the same one she has occupied since the beginning of the trial—in the listless manner that has marked her demeanor from the first day.

There were many of her relatives as well as relatives of the Guerin family in court, and they all sat together on the other side of the courtroom behind the press table.

There was a brief delay while Judge Brontano took his seat on the bench, looking tired with the strain of the long trial, which has lasted nearly a month.

"Bring in the jury," said the judge brusquely, and the bailiff opened the door for the 12 men to file in. They entered the courtroom and took their seats. The bailiff walked across the room and took from the foreman the folded paper. He passed back to where Clerk Carter stood at the left of Judge Brontano and handed the paper up to him.

Unfolding it rapidly, Carter in a single breath read the verdict "not guilty" and sat down.

Mrs. McDonald Breaks Down.

There was a gasp. Then a smothered sob broke the intense silence. And then all semblance of order disappeared for a few minutes. The attorneys for Mrs. McDonald sprang to her side and surrounded her. She sank back utterly helpless. In the courtroom excitement raged for a moment and then the repeated rattling of the gavel of half a dozen bailiffs brought order back.

"Clear the courtroom," was Judge Brontano's order, and while Mrs. McDonald, surrounded by her lawyers, was whisked from the gaze of the morbid crowd of spectators the crowd passed slowly from the room.

Almost immediately afterward Judge Brontano left the bench and retired to his chambers, after first discharging the jury with a few words of appreciative thanks for their long and arduous service.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

Log Cabin near Hodgenville, Ky., where Lincoln was born February 12, 1809.

Hodgenville, Ky., Feb. 12.—Ninety-nine years ago today Kentucky gave to the world and to the nation Abraham Lincoln. Cradled in a rough log cabin, endowed with the heritage of poverty, this Kentucky boy was nevertheless consecrated from February 12, 1809, to the hour of his death to the betterment if the condition of mankind. Fitting indeed that the nation which he saved should unite on the anniversary of his birth in poems of praise for the one brilliant American who struck the iron from bondage and bade a race stand free.

Nothing else it is that plans should at this moment be well under way for the adequate commemoration of Lincoln's services to the Republic, as is contemplated in the Lincoln Farm Memorial association and its purposes. This association is headed by the Hon. Joseph W. Folk of Missouri as president, and with Robert Collier of Collier's weekly, as chairman of the executive committee, which committee embraces in its membership such distinguished citizens as Horace Porter, Lyman J. Gage, Joseph J. Choate, Charles A. Towne, Henry Watterson, William H. Taft, Samuel L. Clemens, Cardinal Gibbons, Oscar S. Strauss, etc.

The plans of the association are well under way; in fact, one quarter of the $100,000 fund which it proposes to raise has already been secured. This fund has come from popular subscriptions and contributions down to a point as small as 25 cents. Every contributor has become a member of the Lincoln Farm Association. The association has purchased the log cabin in and farm near Hodgenville, where Lincoln came into the world. The plot of ground includes 110 acres. It is being embellished by John Russell Pope of New York city, whose plans combine the virtues of sentiment and craftsmanship. He has apportioned a strip of land 1000 feet long at the farm's western corner, which will be screened from the other landscape by hedges and poplar trees. At each end of this natural pantheon of poplars appears a pair of imposing monuments. One is a marble column 50 feet high, marking the precise spot where the log cabin stood, while the cabin itself will repose in a temple at the opposite end of the court. This latter memorial building will be an imposing structure which will enclose the entire original log cabin just as it stood the day when Lincoln was born, together with other relics and a cabinet containing the names of the donors to the Lincoln Memorial Farm fund.

It is expected that the Lincoln memorial will be ready for dedication February 12, 1909, the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, at which time it is expected President Roosevelt will dedicate the modern temple to the memory of Lincoln. No more touching sentiment regarding this splendid patriotic act has been voiced than came from Mark Twain, whose suggestion in this regard has already become a classic. "The government," said he, "is spending millions every year on agriculture colleges and model farms to teach the art of raising more corn and more squash. In the present political, moral and social atmosphere of the American people there is nothing in that line that can compare with this little model farm that raised a man."

CATARRH A SERIOUS FAR-REACHING BLOOD DISORDER

Even in its early stages Catarrh is almost intolerable, caused by the stuffy feeling in the nose, the buzzing noises in the ears, the continual "hawking and spitting," difficult breathing, etc. But when the blood becomes thoroughly polluted from the catarrhal matter, the inflammation extends to the bronchial tubes, causing hoarseness, and often an aggravating cough; the stomach is affected, resulting in dyspepsia, loss of appetite and strength, and gradually all the mucous membranes of the body become diseased and the system upset and deranged. Frequently the kidneys and bladder are attacked, and the constant passage of impure blood through the lungs, diseases these important members, and Catarrh terminates in Consumption. Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease, and must be treated constitutionally, for it is beyond the reach of local treatment. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all the impure catarrhal matter and at the same time building up the entire system. It goes down and attacks the disease at its head, in the circulation, and removes every trace of the impurity that is causing the trouble. Then as rich, pure blood circulates through the body, the inflamed membranes commence to heal, the mucous discharges grow less and finally cease, and all the disagreeable and disgusting symptoms of Catarrh disappear. S. S. S. has no equal as a cure for this disease. It refines and purifies the entire circulation and repairs the damage done by Catarrh. Special book on Catarrh and any medical advice free.

WHO PAYS FOR THE ADVERTISING?

We will award three prizes for the best opinions

PRIZES TO LADIES ONLY

1st prize - $3.00
2nd prize - 2.00
3rd prize - 1.00

All opinions must be sent to this office by 6:00 p. m. Thursday, Feb. 13. They must be written in 200 words or less, and on one side of the paper only. Sign the opinion with a fictitious name and enclose your true name on a separate piece of paper.

Remember, the question is: WHO PAYS FOR THE ADVERTISING? This refers only to advertising in THE GAZETTE. To give an example of meritorious advertising and its results, let us take two merchants, one an advertiser and the other a non-advertiser.

THE NON-ADVERTISER. Let us suppose, spends $75 each month for rent, $200 each month for salaries, and $75 a month for light, heat, and incidentals, amounting to $4,200 is his total expense for one year. From this total expense he has been able to sell enough goods to make him a CROSS profit of $7,000, from which he deducts his expense $4,200, leaving him $2,800 for his remuneration and interest on his investment.

THE ADVERTISER. sells the same goods at the same prices. His rent is the same as the non-advertiser, his salaries the same, his incidental expense is the same, but he adds on to this $50 a month for advertising which brings his total expense to $4,800. He finds, however, that the $50 each month for advertising has enabled him to increase his sales in the year, and that his gross profits are $8,000, from which he deducts the total expense of $4,800, leaving him $3,200 for remuneration and interest.

Now, the question, who pays the $50 each month for this advertising? The advertiser surely is ahead because his net profits are $3,200, while the non-advertiser only made $2,800. The consumer buys the same goods at the same prices, so they do not pay it.

"What do you mean?" demanded Mortimer hoarsely. "What the devil do you mean by asking me if I expected to find you here? If I had, I'd not have traveled down to your office today to see you; I'd have come here for you. Naturally people suppose that an engaged man is likely to give up this sort of thing."

Quarrier, motionless, white to the lips, turned his eyes from one to the other. He looked at Lydia, and his lips moved. "You asked me to come," he said.

"No, you offered to. I wished to talk to you over the wire, but"—her lips curled, and she shrugged her shoulders—"you seemed to be afraid of something or other."

"I couldn't talk to you in my own house, with guests in the room."

"One moment," interposed Mortimer blandly. "As long as I traveled down town to see you and find you here so unexpectedly I may as well take advantage of this opportunity to regale a little matter. You don't mind our talking shop for a moment, Lydia? Thank you. It's just a little business matter between Mr. Quarrier and myself, a matter concerning a few shares of stock which I once held in one of his companies bought at par and tumbled to ten and—What is the fraction, Quarrier? I forget."

Quarrier thought deeply for a moment; then he rubbed his head, looking full at Mortimer, and under his silky beard an edge of teeth glimmered. "Did you wish me to take back those shares at par?" he asked.

"Exactly! I know you would. I know you'd see it in that way," cried Mortimer heartily. "Confound it all, Quarrier, I've always said you were that sort of man; that you'd never let a friend in on the top floor and kick him clear to the cellar. As a matter of fact, I sold out at 10%. Wait! Here's a pencil. Lydia, give me that pad on your desk. Here you are, Quarrier, it's easy enough to figure out how much you owe me. Lydia, would you mind handing up that check book I left here before dinner?"

He had made a mistake. The girl flushed. He choked up and cast a startled glance at Quarrier. But Quarrier if he heard made no motion of understanding. Perhaps it had not been necessary to convince him of the conspiracy.

When he had finished his figures he reviewed them, tracing each total with his pencil's point; then quietly handed the pad to Mortimer, who went over it and nodded that it was correct.

Lydia rose, Quarrier said, without looking at her: "I have a blank check with me. May I use one of those pens?"

No he had brought a check! Had he supposed that a check might be necessary when Lydia called him up? Was he prepared to meet any demand of hers, too, even before Mortimer appeared on the scene?

"As long as you have a check with you, Howard," said Lydia quietly, "suppose you simply add to Mr. Mortimer's amount what you had intended to offer me."

He stared at her without answering.

"That little remembrance for old time's sake. Don't you recollect?"

"No," said Quarrier. "Why, Howard? Didn't you promise me all sorts of things when I wanted to go to your friend, Mr. Howard, and explain that it was not his fault I got into the Patrons club? Don't you remember I felt dreadfully that he was expelled—that I was simply wild to write to the governors and tell them how I took Merkle's clothes and drove to the club and waited until I saw a lot of men go in and then crowded in with the push?"

Mortimer was staring at Quarrier out of his protruding eyes. The girl leaned forward, self-possessed, the red lips glowing with growing scorn.

"That was a dirty trick!" said Mortimer heavily. He took the pad, added a figure, passed it to Lydia, and she easily wrote a total, underlining it heavily.

"That is the amount," she said.

Quarrier looked at the pad which she had tossed upon the desk. Then he slowly vetted his pen with ink and, laying the loose check flat, began to fill it in. Afterward he dried it and, reading it carefully, pushed it aside and rose.

"It wouldn't be advisable for you to stop payment, you know," observed Mortimer insolently, lying back in his chair and stretching his legs.

"I know," said Quarrier, pausing to turn on their a deadly stare. Then he went away. After awhile they heard the door close. But there was no sound from the electric hansom, and Mortimer rose and walked to the window.

"He's gone," he said.

Lydia stood at the desk examining the check.

"We ought to afford a decent tanning car now," she suggested—"like that yellow and black car of Mr. Plank's."

Mortimer's health was excellent. The races had not proved remunerative, however, and his new motor car was horribly expensive. So was Lydia. And he began to be seriously afraid that by the end of August he would be obliged to apply to Quarrier once more for some slight temporary token of that gentleman's good will.

He told Lydia this, and she seemed to agree with him. This pleased him. She had not pleased him very much recently. For one thing she was becoming too friendly with some of his friends, Desmond in particular.

Plank, it was known, had opened his great house at Black Falls. His servants, gamekeepers, were there, his stables, kennels, greenhouses, model stock farm—all had been put in immediate condition pending the advent of the master. But Plank had not appeared. His new seagoing steam yacht Stramon still lay in the East river, and at rare intervals a significant glimmer of hunting disclosed the owner's presence abroad for an hour or two.

The Ferralls were at Shotover with their first installment of guests. Sylvia was there, Quarrier expected, because Kemp Ferrall's break with him was not a social one, and Grace's real affection for Sylvia blinded neither her nor her husband to the material and social importance of the intimacy. Howard was not invited. Neither had an invitation to him been even discussed in view of what Grace knew concerning the implacable relations existing between him personally and Howard Quarrier.

Bridge, yachting and motoring were the August sports. The shooting set had not yet arrived, of course—in fact, there was still another relay expected before the season opened and brought the shooting order for the first two weeks. But Sylvia was expected to last through and hold over with a brief interlude for a week's end at Lenox. So was Quarrier, and Grace, always animated by a lively but harmless malice, hoped to heaven that Plank might arrive before Quarrier left.

"Oh, to see them together in a small room," she sighed ecstatically in Sylvia's ear. "I'd certainly poke them up if they only turned around suitably in the corners of the cage and evinced a desire to be down."

"What a mischief maker you are!" said Sylvia listlessly.

Tyres seemed, in fact, little to interest her that summer at Shotover House. Her interest, too, in people had seemingly been extinguished. Once or twice she did inquire as to Marion's whereabouts and learned that Miss Page was fishing in Minnesota somewhere, but would return to Shotover when the shooting opened. Somewhere, Captain Voucher perhaps, mentioned to somebody in her hearing that Steward was still in New York.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

THE heat, which had been severe in June, driving the hot fast tonable lotter into the country, continued fiercely through-out July. August was stilling.

Nobody who was anybody remained in town except some wealthy business men and their million odd employees, but the million, being nobodies, didn't count.

Quarrier's huge limestone mansion, looming golden in the sun, was tenantless. Its owner, closing over The Sedges, his Long Island house, and driven northward for a breath of air, was expected at Shotover.

The house of Mrs. Mortimer was closed and boarded up. A caretaker apparently guarded Major Belvedere's house, peeping out at intervals from behind the basement windows. As for Plank's great pile of masonry rising the outer hundreds in the north, several lighted windows were to be seen in it at night, and a big yellow and black touring car whizzed down town from its bronze gateway every morning with perfect regularity.

For there was a light on that had steadily grown hotter with the weather and Plank had little time to concern himself with the temperature or to mop his red features over the weather bureau report. Harrington and Quarrier were after him—horse, foot and dragons. Harrington had even taken a house at Southlight in order to be near in person, and Quarrier's move from Long Island to Shotover House was not as slight as it might appear, for he had his private car there and a locomotive at Black Falls Crossing station, and he was within striking distance of Rochester, Utica, Syracuse and Albany, which was what Harrington thought necessary.

The noise of the fray in the papers, which had first excited then stunned the outside public, continued in a delirium of rumor, report, forecast and summing-up at the week's end.

Sears heads involving everybody and everything, from the district attorney to Plank's often boy, succeeded one another. Plank's name headed column after column. Already becoming familiar in the society and financial sections, it began to appear in neighboring paragraphs.

Plank scarcely noticed what the press said of him. He was too busy; his days were full days, brimming over deep into the night. Undaunted, flexible, slow to the verge of stupidity at times, at times swift as a startled tiger, this new, amazing personality steadily developing, looming higher, heavier, athwart the financial horizon, in stature holding his own among giants, then growing gradually, inch by inch, dominated his surrounding level sky line.

Harrington, old, heavy, seamed, scarred, maimed in onslaughts of long forgotten battles, looked long and hard upon this world of his own dead youth which now rose towering in confront him, menacing him with the armed point of the same shield behind which he himself had so long found shelter—the law!

"BOB LOWE IS OUT OF BASEBALL FOREVER."

From appearances "Bob" Lowe is out of his league baseball forever. The great second baseman, who played his first ball for the old Boston nationals, is to secure his release from the Detroit American League team to coach the Western University of Pennsylvania team and manage the Newcastles (Pa.) team of the Ohio Pennsylvania league. Lowe was captain of the Chicago National League team at one time, being succeeded at second by John Myers, who gives Lowe credit for making him the wonder that he is. Lowe has been Detroit's utility man for three years.

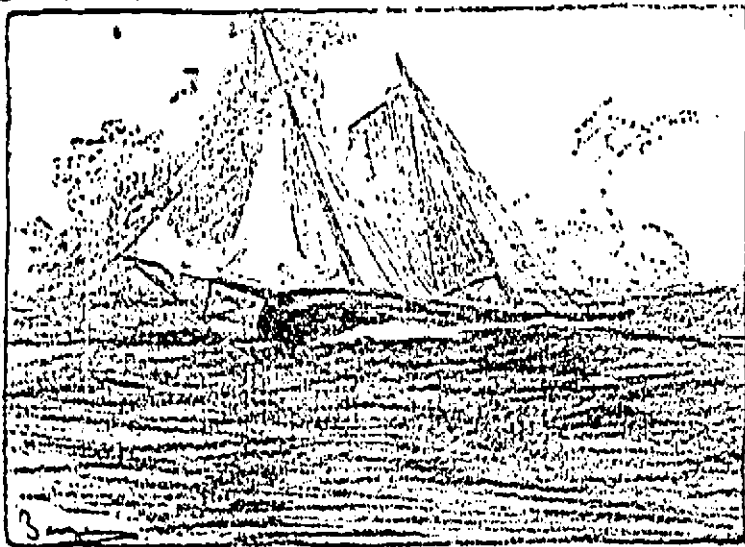

FRANK A. VANDERLIP.

New York, Feb. 12.—James Stillman will soon retire from the presidency of the National City bank and seek a much needed rest after a long and arduous career as one of the country's leading bankers. He will not entirely sever his connection with the institution, but will become chairman of the board of directors. Mr. Stillman will be succeeded by Frank A. Vanderlip, who is now vice-president of the National City. The younger man is conceded to be well qualified to take up the work of the office which Mr. Stillman is about to relinquish. He has just been elected a director of the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific, in place of Mr. Stillman, who resigned. Mr. Vanderlip has for years directed the bank's affairs during the absence of the president. He came to the institution as vice-president in 1901, after four years of service in Washington as assistant secretary of the treasury. He is 44 years of age. When Secretary Gage was asked by President McKinley to take charge of the treasury in 1897 he made Mr. Vanderlip, then a Chicago journalist, his private secretary. The National City bank of New York, which Mr. Vanderlip will head, is one of the world's greatest financial institutions.

ECONOMIC WINTERING OF THE FARM HORSE.

Up to the present time very little has been done to determine the best foods and combinations of the same for the economic wintering of the farm work horse at a time when it is either a non-producer of work or performing light labor only. Throughout that portion of the year when the horse is employed at hard labor plentiful supplies of the best food available on the farm is none too good for him. During the winter season, however, when some, if not all of the working stock are comparatively idle they are likely to suffer from one or two extremes. The lover of horses at this time is likely to maintain his animals on the best mow of hay and the best bin of grain irrespective of cost. Those inclining toward the other extreme are likely to turn the work horse into the barnyard during the winter season requiring him to secure a subsistence from the straw stack and an occasional bundle of corn stover. In the former case the horse is liable to suffer from over-feeding and lack of exercise, while in the latter case he is unduly exposed and inadequately supplied with nourishing food. There are far too many farm horses wintered over in the barnyard and set at hard work in the spring, in a thin, emaciated condition without any reserve energy whatever to draw upon in performing their arduous labors. Horses wintered in this way should have at least four to six weeks preparatory feeding to fit them for work.

A diet of timothy hay and oats is an expensive one for the idle work horse. The timothy hay can be substituted in part, probably to the extent of two-thirds, by bright clean corn stover and oat straw. A large part of the oats may be replaced by combinations of ear corn, bran, dried beet pulp and some oil cake. The combinations and proportions of the concentrates used any season must depend on the availability and relative values of the same. One feed per day of from 5 to 10 pounds of field carrots is a very fine satisfactory supplement to the food of the idle farm horse during winter. A small patch of carrots grown in one corner of the field will produce a large amount of horse feed at small cost. Abundant exercise such as provided by the run of the barnyard during the day is very essential, but should be followed by comfortable stabling or shelter at night.

The illustration shows two horses economically wintered and in proper condition for spring work.

Exercise for Nervousness.
Exercises conscientiously gone through in your bedroom night and morning, a few breaths of fresh air taken every day in the open air, and a brisk, even walk, during which care is peremptorily banished from the mind, will either separately or collectively accomplish as much, if not more, toward reducing nervous life than a sea voyage under the best conditions.
